Lost LA

From Little Tokyo to Crenshaw

Season 5

Episode 5

Japanese Americans returning from World War II incarceration camps rebuilt their community in L.A.'s Crenshaw area. In this episode, we walk through Little Tokyo, explore the archives at the Japanese American National Museum, share a meal at historic Tak's Cafe, shoot hoops at Dorsey High and consider how the neighborhood's diverse history intersects with community-building efforts today.

REO Brothers from Tacloban

Widely acknowledged as the Philippines finest Beatle tribute band, the REO Brothers has astonished the music world with their phenomenal success shortly after breaking into Manila's music scene when their hometown of Tacloban was ravaged by Typhoon Yolanda (International name: Haiyan) in November 2013. As 5 real siblings performing separate instruments, the band is a unique phenomenon. That, in itself, has become an attraction to concertgoers!

From the Archives: Chinese Likenesses from San Francisco Portrait Studios

The California Historical Society holds a number of portraits of Chinese sitters at San Francisco photography galleries taken between the 1860s and the 1890s. Typically showing ordinary men staring directly into the lens, or women looking slightly off-camera, they provide a striking contrast to the many troubling images of Chinese people that were produced in early California.
